

RED

Once upon a time in a little village lived a young girl named Little Red Riding Hood (but it takes forever to write it so we're going to call her Red). One day, her parents told her to bring her grandma a bucket full of KFC delicious chicken wings. Red was told not to go into the forest that surrounded her grandma's house but it was a shortcut and it would take ages to go around it, so, she obviously entered the forest.

She had hardly stepped into shadows of the trees that a wolf appeared out of nowhere "Hello young lady, how are thou?" saluted the wolf. "Hhmm what a delicious smell, what's in thine bucket? For whomst ist?" continued the wolf.

"It's for my grandma, and you are not allowed to touch it," said the girl, "Plus I do not know you! Stay away from me! I'm not supposed to talk to strangers."

"Does thine Grandmother live in the little cabin in the middle of the forest?" asked the wolf, "Because I know a way to get there in a flash."

"Thanks, but no thanks," responded Red. "I can go there alone. Goodbye mister..." She had turned her head for like half a second and the wolf had vanished.

"What a creep! Mom told me that some weirdos lived in this forest," she said before getting back on track. After two hours, she reached her grandma's house. She had run to get there as fast as she could, because the forest was scaring her and she needed to see a friendly face. The door was wide open, so she entered. She heard noises coming from the bedroom.

"Grandma?" she asked, a little bit scared, "Are you here?"

She entered the room and saw the wolf trying to eat her grandma!

"Oh, it's only the wolf. I thought it was something worse," she said from the doorstep.

"Oh thou are here, too, little girl? Now watch, as I devour your grandma - because you're next!" said the wolf, menacingly.

"I don't think so," said the grandma, before getting an assault rifle from under her bed, "SAY HELLO TO MY LITTLE FRIEND!" she yelled before starting to empty her cartridge into the wolf.

He ran and hid behind a wall so thick that the bullet couldn't pierce through.

"Listen ma'am it was a joke! Chill! Chill!" he cried.

"YOU PICKED THE WRONG HOUSE, FOOL!" screamed the grandma.

Suddenly her gun ran out of ammo. The wolf walked into the room with a carnivorous grin.

"AHAHAHAHA! Now you are MINE!"

"I don't think so..." said Red before giving her grandma her favorite rocket launcher.

"What the fu...?"

"DOSVIDANIYA CYKA" yelled the grandma before blowing him into smithereens.

After that stressing episode, Red and her grandma ate the contents of the bucket and took up their weapons to rule the forest and then the country. They became the greatest mafia of all the Fairy tale world. When Grandma died in a heist, Red became the new Godperson and she lived a happy life of heists, murders, blackmail and drugs.

THE END

Alix DE NOVAIS ANTONIO, TL2

.